DAREBIN'S DRAFT PARKING PERMIT POLICY

Have your say

Background

On-street parking is a community asset and there are often not enough spaces for everyone, especially in streets near shops and public transport. This is when we need to manage parking so that spaces are available for those who need them most.

Darebin's Parking Permit Policy provides clear rules about parking permit eligibility and allocation.

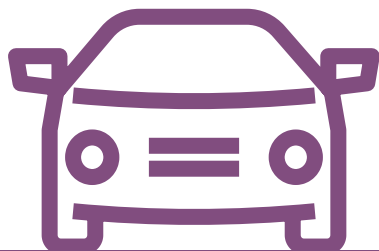

Since the policy was introduced in 2004 our diverse community has continued to grow and change, as have people's parking needs, so it's time for some updates.

We heard from you in November 2022 about four options we presented to the community, and we've used your valuable feedback to help draft a new Parking Permit Policy.

We're proposing introducing some new permits, removing some that are no longer working and allowing some newer homes to access parking permits.

What do you think about the updates? Does the draft policy meet your expectations and needs? Does it support our diverse community's needs now and into the future? We want to hear your thoughts.

Increased access to permits may impact demand, on-street parking availability, and fees. To find out more about this we encourage you to read the FAQs on the web page below.

Your Questions Answered

1. What happened during Stage 1 community engagement?

Stage 1 community engagement occurred between October and November 2022. In Stage 1 we proposed four options to improve the policy ranging from small adjustments to big changes. We asked for feedback on the options and other ideas about access and eligibility.

2. How did you develop the draft Policy?

The draft Parking Permit Policy considered feedback during stage 1 community engagement, transport industry standards and technical guidelines, the recommendations of a peer review, and decisions made at a Council meeting.

The stage 1 community engagement and peer review can be viewed in the document library at yoursay.darebin.vic.gov.au/parkingpolicy.

3. What has changed in the draft Parking Permit Policy?

The draft Parking Permit Policy introduces some new parking permit types that many residents would be eligible for, including Carer, Service, and User-Pays permits.

The draft policy also allows some newer developments to access permits. The draft Policy also allows for extenuating circumstances to be considered.

It is important to note that increasing eligibility for parking permits may result in increased demand for on-street parking and increased fees for permits.

4. Why are only some homes eligible for resident permits?

Only people living in houses built before December 2004 are currently eligible for most types of parking permits. This is known as the '2004 rule' in Darebin.

The purpose of the '2004 rule' is to ensure that the parking needs of residents living in older homes are catered for, whilst managing the demand for on-street parking created by new development. It helps to ensure when people build new homes in Darebin, they include enough off-street parking to meet the needs of the occupants.

In response to what we heard through stage 1 community engagement, the draft policy allows residents of single dwelling on a lot and some 2 dwellings on a lot developments built after 2004 to access parking permits.

Please note, this engagement is about on-street parking permits, and not about introducing or changing parking restrictions.

Proposed permit types

The draft Parking Permit Policy includes five different types of permits.

RESIDENT PERMIT

Who is eligible:

- Available to residents of: all dwellings built before 20/12/2004; new single dwelling developments, extensions and rebuilds; 2 dwellings on a lot built between 20/12/2004 and the commencement date of this new policy.
- People experiencing extenuating circumstances*

How many per dwelling:

- 2 per dwelling, reduces to 1 if off-street parking is available (driveway, garage, carport, etc).

How it works:

- Fixed to a vehicle, not transferrable

CARER PERMIT

Who is eligible:

- Available for any resident living with a long-term health issue or disability that requires visiting carers

How many per dwelling:

- 1 per dwelling

How it works:

- Issued to the care recipient, free of charge
- The permit is transferrable between the resident and their carers

VISITOR PERMIT

Who is eligible:

- Available to all residents who are eligible for resident permits

How many per dwelling:

- No limit on the number of permits available and sold in sets of 10

How it works:

- Valid for a single day
- Replaces 'temporary permits'

SERVICE PERMIT

Who is eligible:

- Available to all residents

How many per dwelling:

- 2 per year, valid for up to 4 weeks each

How it works:

- To be used when a resident has a tradesperson, cleaner, removalist working on their home.
- Provides an exemption of up to four weeks from Timed Parking or Permit Zone restrictions for workers

USER PAYS PERMIT

Who is eligible:

- Available to anyone (not just Darebin residents)

How many per dwelling:

- Valid for 4 weeks, can be renewed every month

How it works:

- Priced at a significantly higher rate compared to other permit types

*This may include:

- Escaping natural disaster or domestic violence
- Some medical issues
- Owning more cars than the number of off-street parking spaces at their home (only those eligible for resident permits)
- Being required to store a commercial vehicle at their home

These are issued as resident permits.
